One Hundred and Seventy-nine Lives Lost in the Catastrophe.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—By the Eteamer Maripeo, from Australia, additional details have been received of the wrecked steamer Shett. About 9 o'clock on March the passenges were startled by the sudden stopping of the engines and the grating of the vessel's keel on the rock. In less than three minutes the Shett had suid out of sight, leaving 201 people strong gling in the waves. Some were borne under by the taughed riggings, and others, more fortunate, clung to the floating wavelence.

One functived and seventy-nine lives were lost. Of 126 whites, only thirty escaped, while of 165 negrees, eighty-two servives. Many of the whites were imprisoned in
